hearty kapucijners (field peas / marrowfat peas). The peas are accompanied by a savory mix of crispy bacon bits (spekjes), pickles (aigurk), silver skin onions (zilveruitjes), and tangy piccalilli relish

The dish dates back to the era of Dutch shipping companies and VOC trading vessels. Long voyages meant reliance on nutritious ingredients like dried field peas, beans, and cured meats. While regular sailors ate plain legumes, the ship’s captain had access to finer luxuries. He would upgrade his peas with stored bacon, home-cured meats, and pickles.
